

FCC Comment regarding Net Neutrality

I support the idea of a free and open internet. Period. Internet providers should NOT be allowed to decide which sites we can visit or that they're going to charge us for access to such sites or any of the rest of that. It's an infringement on free speech and antithetical to the protections afforded us by our constitution.

Access to information shouldn't come with a price tag.

This is nothing more than a sham to hand rich cable and internet companies more control, more power, more money — all at the expense of the American People.

LEAVE THE INTERNET ALONE.

The Net Neutrality policies enacted by the Obama Administration's FCC should remain in effect.
